Arieh Saposnik is an Associate Professor at the Ben-Gurion Institute for the Study of Israel and Zionism at Ben-Gurion University in the Negev. A historian of Zionism and Jewish nationalism, Saposnik is interested in the construction of national cultures and identities in the modern world. He is the author of Becoming Hebrew: The Creation of a Jewish National Culture in Ottoman Palestine (Oxford University Press), and of Zionism's Redemptions: Images of the Past and Visions of the Future in Jewish Nationalism (Cambridge University Press).

He is currently working on a book that explores modern efforts to reshape the Jewish relationship to space and place and on an intellectual biography of Joseph Klausner. Saposnik is a former President of the Association for Israel Studies (2021-2023). Prior to joining the faculty at Ben-Gurion University, he was the founding director of the Nazarian Center for Israel Studies at UCLA.
